RSE is the scientific journal of the Centro Italiano per la Ricerca Storico-Educativa (CIRSE), the academic society that brings together Italian historians of education. The journal first appeared in 2014, having grown out of the «Nuovo Bollettino CIRSE». It is published biannually, in June and December, and usually contains a monograph and a miscellaneous section.

Monograph sections are commissioned by the Executive Board with the aim of introducing new historiographical trends and/or methodological approaches to the Italian scientific community, as well as celebrating special events related to Italian education. Subject to approval by the Executive Board, monograph may also be proposed by external guest editors (who need not be Italian); approved proposals will be disseminated by the Editorial Staff through a call for papers. Each issue should not exceed 200 printed pages and must conform to specific guidelines.

All articles in the journal, whether monographs or in the miscellaneous section, are subject to double blind peer review, as well as review by the journal's Board of Referees. This is made up of Italian and non-Italian members, the latter in particular being selected from among internationally renowned experts.

The journal publishes articles in Italian, English, French and Spanish; monograph, however, must be in Italian or English.
